Michael Tait Evaluation Summary

Math 150 13, Fall 2012

Comments (copied exactly from evaluations)

Mr. Tait is a great teacher who really knew his calculus. One recommendation for him though is by going over more examples in class. Also doing more worksheets, so that when we did homework or took quizzes things wouldn't seem foreign. Maybe if he gave/did hand examples in class that would help a lot.

The professor knows his subject very well and is reasonable and is willing to help you when needed.

Very intelligent, but sometimes unorganized. He was very helpful during office hours.

I wish more office hours were available and homework pertained more to test material, professor very knowledgeable.

Homework is very hard but what he teaches in class is what we see on tests and quizzes.

The only thing I feel this course could improve on is possibly slowing down just a bit. I feel it is expected that you already took calculus, which if one did not, will lead to many difficulties.

Great professor. Knows what he's talking about and he's always willing to help students in office hours.

Overall very knowledgeable! Great help during office hours as well and interested in students success. As for lecture, the use of more examples (with definite numbers) would be helpful.

The professor was very knowledgeable and personable and I feel like I learned a lot during the semester. Occasionally, the instructor would go a little fast for me though as I never took pre-calc in highschool.

He seems really helpful. I could write more on him if I went to office hours, but I never did. He knows what he is teaching. Only thing that bothers me in class is that he did not have many example. Other than that he is a great professor.

The course is well organized and timely, putting us a head of other classes. I would like to see additional office hours for students that have class right after this one, like I do. I was not able to go to any office hours this year due to this problem.

While the instructor knew the course material very well, some of the methods he explained were more confusing than they probably had to be. He was a good, fair instructor though.

Mr. Tait is a great teacher, makes the class entertaining and fun. I personally feel there should be a few more actual example problems and a few less proofs, but the course and instructor are good overall.

This course was easier than I anticipated. Mr. Tait did a good job of explaining everything and I feel that I have a very good understanding of calculus.

Very helpful and explained things thoroughly.

I really liked that he spent a lot of time teaching the basic concepts and making sure we completely understood them. Most teachers barely touch on them and then students get lost. He needs to do more examples with numbers and examples with problems from the book.

Slow down in lecture sometimes so that everything can process in our heads. Assign more homework problems with concepts we have gone over in class.

The instructor keeps the classroom feeling relaxed and he is open to questions. The material sometimes feels scattered and homework doesn't always make sense based on class problems.

Mr. Tait is a great teacher who really knew his calculus. One recommendation for him though is by going over more examples in class. Also doing more worksheets, so that when we did homework ^{too h}overwhelms things wouldn't seem foreign. Maybe if he gave/did hard examples in class that would help a lot.
